READING B1

A difficult choice

When a local company discovered that one of its employees had made a serious mistake, the manager had to decide what to do.

The mistake had caused financial problems, but nobody had been injured. The employee immediately admitted what had happened and explained that he had made the mistake because he had not received enough training.

The manager considered two options. He could punish the employee or use the situation as an opportunity to improve the company's training system.

In the end, he decided not to dismiss the employee. Instead, the company introduced additional training and created a new procedure for checking important tasks.

The decision did not remove the consequences of the mistake, but it helped prevent similar problems in the future.

Questions

1. What happened?
 2. Why did the employee make the mistake?
 3. What were the manager's options?
 4. What decision did he make?
 5. What did the company change?
 6. Why could the decision be useful in the future?

LISTENING B1

Posłuchaj nagrania.

When I have to make an important decision, I try not to decide immediately. First, I identify the problem and collect information. Then I think about the possible solutions and their consequences. I also ask other people for advice if the decision affects them. Finally, I choose the option that seems most reasonable, even if it isn't perfect.

Questions

1. What does the speaker do first?
 2. Why does the speaker collect information?
 3. What does the speaker consider?
 4. When does the speaker ask for advice?
 5. Does the speaker expect every decision to be perfect?
 6. How does the speaker choose?
